

Daily life takes a lot of courage sometimes. Your freshman year is filled with unprecedented pressures and frustrations. When you have to walk around with your name and major on a huge placard and a small beanie on your head it doesn't help you feel very secure. Unfortunately, the first semester grades don't always lend support to your failing ego.

